Biography:

Andrew is a Water Program Specialist within the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection's, Regional Permit Coordination Office. Andrew joined the Department in June 2018 and is responsible for statewide coordination and consistency related to Chapter 102 and 105. He brings 20 years' experience working with state, federal, private, and local agencies on a myriad of environmental projects and issues. Andrew's perspectives are drawn from projects across the U.S. and Africa. He joined DEP after nearly 8 years at the global engineering, planning and design firm AECOM and previously worked for the Cooperative Institute for Great Lakes Research through the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration's Great Lakes Environmental Research Lab. In his spare time, Andrew teaches biology and environmental sciences as an adjunct professor. He holds a Master of Science degree in Ecology and Organismal Biology and a Bachelor of Science in Terrestrial and Aquatic Ecology from Eastern Michigan University.
